

STATE EDUCATIONAL HEAD SPEAKS HERE

Tells Rotarians About Education's Place in World Crisis.

That education has a vitally important part in the present world crisis and will occupy an equally significant role in the world's affairs after the war was made clear in a talk given to Marion Rotarians yesterday by Dr. Walter L. Collins of Columbus, director of the division of instruction, state department of education.

He spoke on "Education in a World Crisis," following the club's weekly luncheon at Hotel Harrison. The main portion of his address was broadcast over WMRN.

It is the function of education, Dr. Collins said, to make children realize what this war is about and to understand our part in it but at the same time to guarantee them a life of dignity and self-respect. It is the function of education to give them the tools and the knowledge to make their lives as good as possible. He pointed to the service performed by school pupils in the present world crisis as an example of the best service. He voiced the opinion, however, that the educational world is being deprived in making the school a place where they can find the general welfare of the community as their performance in education. Of utmost value, Dr. Collins declared, is the training in the minds of young people an understanding of our fundamental life values and principles, as embodied in the American guarantee of life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. In doing this, he said, emphasis should be placed on the axiomatic truth that the greatest individual happiness comes to those who do the most for the society in which they live.

Dr. Collins was introduced to his audience by E. E. Holt, Marion school superintendent who is the Rotary club program chairman.

Experts at Loafing

SQUATTER'S RIGHTS — Gentlemen, and owning a chair, these men meet requirements to sit and talk.

Wide World Features
WILSON, M. C. — "Sit down, mister. Pull up a chair and let's talk."

There simply you have the principles of The Squatters club, flourishing on Wilson's Main Street.

The squatters, who range in age from 10 to 71, pride themselves on their ability to converse fluently and amiably on the topics of the day, and they boast they are the first formally organized club devoted exclusively to loafing and talking.

Informally, the club of 18 members has flourished for more than a decade, but a recent near-catastrophe galvanized the group into a speedy organization effort.

Harry Walls, whose tailor shop had been a standard meeting place for 15 years, returned from a vacation trip to announce that his long bachelorhood was drawing to a close. He planned to close his shop and move to Baltimore.

This demanded immediate action to prevent impending eviction, and the squatters hurriedly gathered their forces. They voted unanimously against interfering in Walls' matrimonial plans, and, with equal accord, decided the best thing to do was to form a club.

Out of their planning emerged the squatters. Initiation fees and first monthly dues went to pay rent on Walls' shop, and when he moved out they took over.

Only requirement for membership is that each applicant be a gentleman and be willing to furnish his own chair.

W. J. Hackney is presiding officer of the club, with the title of "kingfish."

Subjects for conversation are as varied as the interests of the members. Right now the chief topic is war. The one subject that is taboo with the squatters — women.

on his hot forehead. He heard the door open but he didn't turn around.

Eddie walked over silently in the dark and sat down on the bed beside him. He sat there for a full minute before saying a word.

"Susie said she had a wonderful time tonight," he said. "Maybe you'd better call her tomorrow."

"I'm sorry I can't like a whipped cur," Todd said.

Eddie swore softly. "You didn't. We understand why you got out of there so fast. We saw that look on your face. We were afraid, for a moment."

"So was I," Todd said hollowly. "I don't think I've ever shown it around here but I'm supposed to have a violent temper. Dad always told me when I feel it coming on I should walk away from it."

Todd stopped. Eddie stretched out beside him. "I wish I had known about your Dad, I mean. Maybe I could be of more help to you now. You know it doesn't mean a thing to me. You know that nothing could make any difference with me. Would you like to tell me a little about it? You don't have to, though."

"Thanks, Ed. There isn't much. They planned something on Dad, two years ago—he was framed beautifully—and they sent him to the Pen." He punched the pillow viciously. "Sure, a lot of the boys have wondered about me for three years now. Couldn't blame 'em, I guess."

He turned on Eddie fiercely. "But I never intended to conceal a thing. I'm not ashamed of my father. He was a gambler, yes—one of the biggest—but he was square and honest and as fine a man that ever breathed."

"Alone was a common name, so he made me promise I wouldn't reveal my background. I was just a kid, so I promised. And so far as this whole campus knew I was just another guy from out West who had lived with his aunt."

"It won't make any difference—not with anybody," Eddie insisted. "You know that, don't you? People don't care about backgrounds, any more. You mustn't let this get you."

"I don't matter so much, Eddie. It's Dad—it's going to get him. He had his heart set on my living entirely free from his shadow." Todd cracked his knuckles together. "I'll have to go down and see him as soon as I can. This thing will get around fast—awfully fast."

Eddie swore again. "That's what I'm afraid of. You can't stop something like that."

Into His Shell
Eddie Luttrell was right. It was too big for confinement. Pete Bailey phoned Sunday night and asked Todd to stop in at the nearest office before practice Monday.

Pete Bailey was a huge bulk of a man with quiet, kindly eyes. For two decades he had been more than a football coach at State. Third-string scrubs found his office as comfortable as the All-Americans he had turned out.

He puffed slowly on his pipe. "Todd, we're in an ugly spot—yes, I said 'we,' because when one of my boys is on the spot I am too. I've heard about—well, who hasn't? In fact, Frank Garvey of the Chronicle and a couple other of the newspaper boys from downtown have been trying to get you all day. They finally got me. They

Public Poll Favors Job Draft, Longer Work Week

By GEORGE GALLUP, Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 28.—With a growing shortage of manpower, the problem of how to increase the total labor force.

War Manpower Commissioner McNutt has told congress that he considers conscription of men and women for war jobs "inevitable."

The American public, judging by tests of opinion, is willing to go the whole way in a manpower conscription program, having voted as early as last March in favor of granting such power to the government.

Evidence is at hand to show that the public also favors a lengthening of the work week in American industry. As long ago as last March an Institute survey found that if the public set the length of the work week, it would be 56 hours for the war's duration, as compared to an average of 42.4 in American factories in July.

Extension of the work week would thus be the equivalent of adding about one-third more workers.

Finally, the public at large believes that, as a general wartime principle, time and one-half pay

WOMEN TAKE PLACE OF MEN IN FACTORIES

Pennsy Shops at Columbus Latest To Hire New Help.

By The Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 28.—As Ohio men move out for military service, women are making their jobs change to feminine work.

Nearly a dozen women have been employed in Pennsylvania railroad shops here for the first time, repairing locomotives and performing other tasks heretofore reserved for men.

The state's U. S. employment service reported today that a survey of 1,000 war industries in the state, each employing 100 or more persons, showed 30 per cent of their workers were women in July and that the total had increased to 23 per cent in September.

Employment service spokesmen said the number of married women accepting employment in the state was climbing.

Women are performing satisfactorily in a number of jobs previously done almost exclusively by men, they said. Occupations included the cutter, air and acetylene welder, tireman, barrel threader, laundry feeding, engine and barrel lathe operator, hose stender, aircraft detail assembler and a score of others.

The employment bureau at Ohio State university said more women had been placed in jobs recently than ever before.

A war job survey of Cleveland's estimated 22,000 factory workers showed 22,500, or 10 per cent, are women.

Cincinnati Municipal Employees Go on Strike.

By The Associated Press.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 28.—Heavily armed men of the city of Cincinnati, estimated at 1,500 by George E. Rice, business agent of their union, went on strike at 8 a. m. today as a result of a long-drawn-out wage controversy.

Rice said that he had posted 300 pickets at city hall, and 100 more at plants of the city waterworks, passing out leaflets in support of the strike.

The employees had demanded wage increases of the city government. Their strike followed a recommendation by City Manager C. O. Sherrill in opposition to the increases. It came, however, while members of city council's finance committee studied the city budget in an attempt to determine if money could be made available.

IN 1938 CONGRESSMAN SMITH WAS ELECTED TO CONGRESS ON A PLEDGE TO THE VOTERS "TO OPPOSE WASTEFUL SPENDING". HE HAS KEPT THAT PLEDGE!

Congressman Smith has been and is now unalterably opposed to wasteful and non-essential, non-defense spending because of its effect upon our defense and war effort.

He says: "People are apt to think wasteful and non-essential, non-defense spending only involves loss of money. But there is much more to it than merely throwing away money. Labor and materials which should go into the production of guns, tanks, planes and ships are all so lost to the war effort."

"In the final analysis, the evil effects of every dollar wasted or spent for things we now can do without, can be traced straight to the battlefield AND THERE CHALKED UP IN LOST BLOOD AND LIVES, AMERICAN BLOOD AND AMERICAN LIVES."

Voters of the 8th District can rest assured that should you elect to return Dr. Smith to Congress, he will continue to vigorously oppose all wasteful and unnecessary spending.

V for Victory Tax

THE only thing in the new tax law that's plain
as day is the so-called victory tax, though
the reason for associating the idea of victory
with taxes remains perfectly concealed.

Thoughtful citizens who have been estimating
their obligations under the new tax schedules
have emerged from the ordeal with two facts
firmly in hand—and little else. Both concern
the Victory tax.

One is the fact that it will be paid for them
out of their earnings by the bookkeeper, like social security taxes. The other is the fact that it amounts to pre-payment of a part of their regular income tax, a point not generally
grasped. This is how it works:

At the end of 12 months, when his 5 per cent
Victory tax has been deducted from his earnings in excess of $12 a week, Elmer Taxpayer
has paid, say, $125 to the government that otherwise would have passed through his hands.
He is permitted to take a credit of 44 per cent
on this because he is a married man with two children and because he paid out more than $100 during the year for insurance premiums,
War Bonds and retirement of his debts. This credit may be applied to the amount of income tax he will owe on March 15, 1943, for the money he earned in 1942. It amounts to paying part of his income tax in advance, or more accurately, to paying it currently, instead of waiting till March 15 of the next year.

Every taxpayer should try to understand that this means the United States finally has made
the first move toward getting its taxpayers out
of debt to the treasury and putting them on a semi-cash basis. In the long run, this probably will be more important than the revenue
the victory tax is expected to produce.

This Is the First Lady

MRS. ROOSEVELT, following in Wendell Willkie's wake, so to speak, has flown to Britain to get posted on the women's angle of the war.

The British understand Mrs. Roosevelt's position in the United States, no doubt. For instance, they must realize that there never has been a first lady like her. They must realize,
also, her political position relative to the President and his advisers. They should understand that she wields considerable influence over congress. They should grasp the ins and outs
of her contacts and goings relative to the leftwingers. There should be nothing puzzling to them in connection with her intensive exploitation of her position as the wife of the chief executive to appear in the press and to be heard on the radio. Last but not least they must understand that during all these years her fellow countrymen have looked upon their first lady
with mingled surprise, admiration, anger and bewilderment, never knowing what to make of her, so if the British can figure out the angle
on their delightful guest while she is figuring
out the angles on British women, it will be a fair exchange.

Year-in-Year-Out Training

THE army is justifiably proud of the military training program it has developed under the pressure of emergency. While the results still remain untried, the war department and, what is more important, the men who have been trained, feel that they are a little more than adequate.

Undoubtedly, the job has been made easier
by the fact that most of the young men who have received military training learned the principles of teamwork and combat under a program that goes year in and year out, in war and peace—football. As Columbia Coach Lou Little explains in the current issue of Saturday Evening Post, there is every reason to believe football
will prove to be a major national asset in this war, as it was in World War I. Coach Little also makes a neat case for the improvement of football as one consequence of the war, but that is beside the point.

Americans have been busily deploring their
neglect of military training, and it is plain now
that a great disservice was done to the members
of the nation's civilian army by letting them
grow up with so slight an acquaintance with arms. But part of the lack of training, perhaps a large part, was made up by the intensive training of hundreds of thousands of young men in a game that is basic warfare in miniature
—hand-to-hand combat with the man who can stand up and take it longest carrying off the honors.

News Behind the News

President Expected To Make His Own
Recommendations on Manpower.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—Buz-
sard General Brehon Somervell
has stepped on a couple of
important toes, which happen to be sensitive, those of War Industrial Director Donald Nelson
and Manpower Paul McNutt.

It seems that General Somervell's
old tangle with Mr. Nelson
on the distribution of war materials, and the various intricacies
of uninvolved conflicting powers
between the war department and WPA has been followed by a tangle with Mr. McNutt over the manpower draft policies.

As a matter of fact, Mr. Mc-Nutt was none too assertive in
his appearance before the senate
committee on the manpower problem. Very significantly, he said that he would only present a report to the president, and broadly suggested that he did not propose to speak for the administration.

His strong views for an arbitrary draft have never been approved by any other authority in the government, and there is every indication that Mr. Roosevelt
will recommend another course,
in which case both General Somervell
and Mr. McNutt might find their current argument purely academic.

General Somervell is an old associate of Harry Hopkins from WPA days in New York, but Mr.
Hopkins has not been seen around
up front much lately.

Mr. McNutt is the most prominent, if not the only presidential candidate for 1944 yet in the field, as far as the front pages
are concerned.

Thus, the fate of two of the most prominent personalities of
the administration are involved
in the President's impending decision on the critical manpower
problem.

Fan Tan

The Japs seem to be playing
some kind of new oriental fan
game with the Tokyo propaganda lately. To turn up publicly with eight prisoners from the Doolittle
raid, seven months after they were captured, seemed a strange circumstance in itself, but to announce that these men had confessed they had orders to bomb
non-military objectives, such as schools, churches and hospitals, is an absurdity which even the Japanese cannot expect anyone to believe.

Some uninformed civilians
might believe these various stories

put out by both sides, blatantly
and continuously, by Hitler and
the Japs, that churches, schools,
hospitals and such are being savagely destroyed by us and the British.

But any thinking person can
see that no one carries a bomb
into enemy territory at great effort and expense to waste it on
such inconsequential (militarily)
objectives.

Such objectives may be hit occasionally when they are near
railroad tracks, shipyards or oil refineries. But when they are hit,
it is a very inefficient and foolish
mistake of the plan. It is just not doing the job he was sent
to do.

This is the silliest of all axis
propaganda lines, obvious fiction,
which they only expect the very
very stupid to believe, and hardly worth the trouble of putting it
out. The only mystery is why Tokyo chose to use it at this time.

The whole affair suggests the Japanese people are uneasy at
the lack of favorable war news
in the past few months, and that Tokyo is forced to resort to distinguishing news of the past, and flavoring it with fairy tales for home consumption.

Election

The average Washington guess
is that the Republicans will win 20 to 22 seats in the house this fall and 5 in the senate. This probably represents a consensus
among congressional and political leaders.

The Dunn survey, which is respected among business people,
predicts a Republican gain of 30
to 33 seats, but 52 are needed for a Republican majority.

No one, therefore, seems to be predicting a Republican house as yet, except a few Republican leaders who have gotten together
with their friends and worked out
the possibility that they might win by a majority of 10 but not enough to give a Republican majority.

Some were a little afraid from
an aspect they might, as
control would place upon them
a responsibility not to be overcome. Uncertainty is involved in even the best political guesses in this uncertain election, as no one knows how many voters will
show up at the polls.

The lack of interest manifest
in the primaries indicates an unprecedentedly light vote.

Gen. Winter Hits Russia

A National Geographic Society Bulletin.

NAZI armies hammering against
a wall of Russian strength
will soon be hammering against
another wall of sub-zero temperatures, drifting snow and cutting winds.

From the Arctic ports of Mur-
mansk and Archangel, down
through Leningrad, Moscow and Stalingrad to the snow-capped peaks of the Caucasus between
the Black and Caspian seas, the Germans face some of the severest weather known on any war
front.

A great portion of this land is flat and low, some of it actually very little above sea level. There are no high mountain ranges
stretching east and west to hold
back the bitter cold of the arctic.
Winds howling over the frozen
steppes and tundra are quieted
only in forested areas.

In the south where tropical winds might normally reach inland, the sky-reaching peaks of the Caucasus bar the way. Mount Tain walls equally high in Iran
and higher in Tibet block Indian ocean breezes from the USSR's Asianic expanse. Along the Far East reaches of Siberia the winds

blow almost entirely from the cold
land to the warmer sea. Thus the moderating Pacific influence is lost.

In October a dread wind, the razor-edged "buran," slashes its
way through the open stretches
of Siberia and cuts deep into the south of Russia. Whirling snow
from the ground and the skies,
the buran strikes with a force
stronger than any Montana blizzard and is death to anyone
caught in its path.

Coldest month throughout almost all of Russia is January.
The rivers—some of which begin their winter freeze late in October or early November—are frequently frozen to the bottoms.
The middle and upper Volga—
the great feeder line for supplies
coming in from southern sea-
ports—is ice-bound for as long as 150 days of the year. Rivers in the extreme north are silenced
sometimes for as long as nine months. Lakes become solid sheets of ice, linking land with land. Marshes are ice-solid. Temperatures in Leningrad drop as low as 35 below zero and in Moscow to 44 below.

The Jeep's Off To War

From Automotive War Production.

EVERY typical American
youth's idea of a good time is
to get behind the wheel of his own jalopy, pile his buddies
around him and with a heavy
foot on the accelerator pedal, zoom
off on an adventurous jaunt.

"When Adolf Hitler put his army on wheels," says Lieut.
General Brehon R. Somervell,
chief of the U. S. army service of supply, "he drove right down our alley."

It's no wonder then that the
soldiers of the United States
armed forces have found a new
"sweetheart." It's only 40 inches
high, yet it goes 55 miles an hour
with three men aboard. Light,
small and highly maneuverable,
it's able to duck behind a patch
of grass to escape detection, and
is tough enough to slough through swamps and forests, where even tanks can not pass. Or it can be snuggled into a cargo plane and
flown off to another front.

This "sweetheart" of America's
youth is, of course, the jeep.
Like all other military vehicles
the jeep was a development of the
automotive industry in cooperation with army engineers. It was the outgrowth of a strange looking vehicle, pegged a "belly flo-pper" by the army men who were testing it at Fort Benning. Consisting of hardly more than a steel
platform on wheels, the "belly
flopper" was powered by a four-
cylinder engine and was operated
by two soldiers lying on their
stomachs—one firing a machine
gun, the other operating pedals
with his feet and steering with a handle in front.

CALLED to view the tests in the
spring of 1940, automotive
executives and engineers chucked
at this "Rube Goldberg"

adaptation of a motor vehicle, but
were quick to recognize the possibilities of such small, light
vehicles which would be powerful enough to overcome the toughest terrain. While the "belly
flopper" never went into production, it started the automotive
men thinking, and when several months later the army proposed a second vehicle which was to be a reconnaissance car, they took
the specifications and developed
the jeep. Since the first pilot
model was approved, thousands
of these units have rolled from
assembly lines of automotive
firms and dispatched to the fighting fronts all over the world.

Going far beyond its original
designation as a reconnaissance
car, the jeeps have proved so successful that they are being used as all-purpose vehicles.
For instance, it is being used to tow a 37-mm. anti-tank gun into action. Built low, difficult for the enemy to see, it is carrying troops
and supplies of food or ammunition to the front. (Flat fenders
increase the seating capacity to six.) In addition, a 50 or 30 caliber machine gun, a mortar, or a small anti-aircraft gun can be mounted on the rear seat.

Statesmen nearly always over-
reach themselves and their own
schemes undo them. "The nations
are sunk down in the pit they have made, in the net which they hid is their own foot taken."
Psalm 9:15.

Kansas is the greatest wheat
state in the United States, producing nearly twice as much as its runner-up, North Dakota.

ANOTHER NAZI GENERAL "GETS THE AIR"

Defeated but Not Forgotten

Wendell L. Willkie Still Holds Spotlight.

WHATEVER WENDELL L.
WILLKIE does or does not
do in the future he has stayed in the political limelight, longer
than most defeated presidential candidates, especially those who haven't enjoyed active support
from their parties.

After his defeat in 1940 he delivered on November 4 a widely
heard speech on the duties of a
"loyal opposition," urging his supporters to stand behind President Roosevelt while retaining the right
to criticize. Otherwise, he warned,
the United States might degener-
ate into a dictatorship.

In the following January Mr.
Willkie held the spotlight again
with a visit to Great Britain and Ireland. On his return in the following month he issued a statement,
but made no radio address. He conferred with the President at the White House, saying afterward

they had discussed chiefly British methods of war production, but
admitting that they had gone into
"the Irish situation." On the same day Mr. Willkie, before a senate committee, had supported the administration's lease-lend bill.

In September, 1941, Mr. Willkie
appeared before a Senate committee as counsel for the motion picture industry, accused of propa-
gandizing in favor of the administration's foreign policy. In October he spoke under the auspices of the American Labor party for the re-election of Mayor La Guardia of New York City. In January, 1942, he filed a brief with the supreme court on behalf of a Communist threatened with loss of citizenship because of Communist party membership.

LAST February Mr. Willkie in-truded himself into military
problems by urging that Gen.
MacArthur be appointed supreme commander of all the armed forces of the United States. In April he forced an anti-isolationist resolution to adoption by the Republican national committee, and in June
came out against the renomination
of Rep. Hamilton Fish, ranking Republican member of the house
foreign affairs committee.

All this is in sharp contrast to the course pursued by most defeated presidential candidates, at least in the last half century. Alfred M. Landon, after 1936, got out of politics, and Herbert Hoover's attempts after 1932 to keep
before the public seemed half-hearted. After 1928 Alfred E.
Smith emerged from semi-retirement to try to head off Franklin D. Roosevelt, later went over to the Republican presidential candidate, John W. Davis after 1924.
James M. Cox after 1920, Charles
E. Hughes after 1918, William
Howard Taft after 1912 and Alton
B. Parker after 1904 all got out of politics.

It Takes All Kinds

One of Our Soldier Friends Is Sid Marks, Who Packs an Aw-Wallop Occasionally.

By DAMON RUNYON

PVT. SID MARKS, Troop C, 5th
squadron, writes me from Fort Riley,
that he is doing fine in the army, or
hopes they do not give him a horse,
seems a strange thought for a guy war-
ing the cavalry.

It seems that when he first reached McArthur they did not query him as choice of service. They just shipped it Riley to this horse outfit. "Of all things,"
says Pvt. Sid, in an astonished tone.

However, the way they are retraining army I imagine Sid will wind up on the saddle deck of a tank. That seems to be ultimate fate of all cavalrymen, now-
days and slack. They mechanize 'em over,
I am wondering why they still call them
cavalrymen.

Not long ago I saw a trio of the finest
ing young fellows. I have clapped eyes
many a day and I recognized them as cavalry not only from the yellow piping or
caps and from their tight fitting riding
boots and highly polished tan boots, but from the way they carried themselves. A cavalryman,
a certain way, you understand.

They said they were cavalrymen, all
but that they had put away their steeds
had become members of a tank corps
was training in the western desert. They said they missed their nags but the
guy said he was glad to lose his horse,
which was scarcely the proper spirit of cavalryman. A mechanized cavalryman a ought to have a few regrets unless he
the cavalry by accident, like Pvt. Sid.

HE IS ONE of my many former pugnacious acquaintances now in the war business. I met him quite often advised of their progress. I had a not the other from Lou Jallo, a former lightweight actor out of Cleveland, one of Jimmy
son's lads, who is now an athletic instructor
Winfield Scott, up San Francisco way.

Last time I saw Pvt. Sid Marks he was
ing a bit of bouncing for an establishment Main street in Los Angeles. I am told he was most efficient bouncer in southern California. He was a big fellow, his thick hair almost snow-white. He was also a lightweight fighter in his day and could punch like very mischief. I understand he punched a too hard on one occasion in Los Angeles,
sometimes happens with extra hard punch.

He is an Englishman whose father was the first World War with an all corps
transport and died of wounds at Saloniki Greece. Sid enlisted in the Middlesex regiment but got heaved out when he found he was under age. Then he enlisted in the British navy and served five years. I
the war on the indefatigable in the battle of Jutland. He was wounded in the right shoulder and was in the water five hours
he was picked up by a destroyer.

HE BECAME a boxer because he was
to take exercise for his crippled leg.
He was managed in this country by a nice
man with a big nose by the name of Brown
had something to do with the Parody
downstairs at 18th and Broadway where Redmond was running the place. I remember seeing Sid, then an unknown, box
great fighter Bobby Barrett on the chu-
night over in Philadelphia, knocking him
in a round and gaining great local fame
was in the early '20s.

I am telling you all this to show you
all kinds of guys in our army. Sid once make a good soldier if he just saves his
for punching for the enemy.

WAR BRIEFS

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Oct. 23—The Tokyo radio continued to broadcast false claims of victory over American forces in the Solomon area, but mixed with them was a warning by "naval quarters" that "the battle is still in progress and the final result therefore can not be foreseen."

This comparatively sober note appeared midway in a lengthy Dome dispatch, most of which was devoted to newspaper comments which pictured a Japanese victory in extravagant terms.

LONDON—A New Chronicle dispatch from Stockholm said today that General Zetzel, former chief of staff of Field Marshal Gerd von Kleist's force, had been appointed by Adolf Hitler to succeed Gen. Franz Halder as chief of staff of the German army.

Halder was said to have been dismissed, along with Gen. Erwin Von Hoek, because of disagreements with Hitler over the Russian campaign.

LONDON—The British Eighth Army "has advanced beyond a number of enemy strong points and is busy mopping up others," Ralph Wadding, Reuters correspondent on the Egyptian front, telegraphed today.

This dispatch bore the date line "West of the El Alamein Line," implying that he had passed through Mustafa Rommel's forward defenses with the British.

The British were said to have lost 53 more tanks yesterday. The Berlin radio said this brought the total of British tanks lost to 206.

The communiqué said German and Italian fighter planes downed 21 planes and a twenty-second was shot down by anti-aircraft fire.

TOKYO (FROM GERMAN BROADCASTS)—The high command said today that "heavy but successful defensive fighting" was continuing along the El Alamein line in Egypt, with the battle most intense along the northern or forward flank.

The British were said to have lost 53 more tanks yesterday. The Berlin radio said this brought the total of British tanks lost to 206.

The communiqué said German and Italian fighter planes downed 21 planes and a twenty-second was shot down by anti-aircraft fire.

TOKYO (FROM GERMAN BROADCASTS)—The Tokyo radio reported that Hongkong was raided this morning by seven United States bombers. No damage was caused by the raiders, the announcement said, and one plane was reported shot down.

Visitor in Bucyrus

Saw Wasp Go Down

Special to The Star

BUCYRUS, Oct. 23—Bucyrus had a first hand description of the sinking of the U.S.S. carrier Wasp, which went down in the Pacific Sept. 15, when James P. Sauer, seaman, who is visiting relatives here, revealed that he was among the men rescued from the ill-fated ship.

Sauer, who was barred by government censorship policy from revealing the loss of the carrier until it was publicly announced by the navy Tuesday, is a nephew of Mrs. Robert W. Wilson Sr., where he is visiting this week.

Sauer told reporters that he had floated for three hours among the debris from the ship after being forced over the side of the ship which caught fire following the attack, and was picked up by an American destroyer. He lost all of his personal effects, including a clarinet, in the sinking, he said.

Ceremony Marks Navy Day

Members of the Marion Navy Club, 111 1/2 S. Main, gathered here today.

Mayor Russell C. Shaver set the scene for the ceremony when he said: "For the past 20 years citizens of the United States have looked to the navy as the backbone of their navy and as the backbone of their nation."

The mayor said the music of the Hudding, flash school band, a group of singing school which included the mature hymn and the navy song, "Anchors Aweigh," would be remembered by the industries throughout their lives.

"May you come back to us with that pride and glory which only can be had in service with that greatest of forces, the United States navy," he said in closing.

armored clash on a larger scale than hitherto developed. After considerable fighting, the enemy were driven off with a considerable loss. Our own forces in tanks were light. Fighting continued.

Dispatches from the front indicated that the axis tank losses already had been considerable, although the main mass of Rommel's tanks still were poised back at the battlefield, where they have been under continued bombing and shelling.

Prisoners Taken

Prisoners who swarmed hard along the British supply lines said they had been under a deadly barrage by the all of artillery batteries which has been thundering since the outset of the British push, which began Friday.

The allied air forces kept Rommel's planes on the defensive yesterday, except for a single attempt to strike the British, and scored 18 to 6 over the axis in planes shot down in combat.

The British reported that the forward fighter attacked formations contained with "no abatement" throughout Monday night and Tuesday.

The superior allied air strength was used night and day against enemy concentrations and forward landing grounds and light bombers and fighter-bombers raided the Matruh dock area. Night fighters shot down a Junkers 87 during the night, the communiqué said.

18 Planes Shot Down

Allied planes shot down 18 axis planes yesterday, 13 of them during a dive bomber attack on British forward troops, the communiqué said. This attack was one of the few aggressive operations undertaken by the axis, whose forces were "mainly on the defensive," it was said.

Six allied aircraft were lost in operations over North Africa and in the defense of Malta, where the axis bombing continued with little damage reported, the communiqué said.

The slow, hard struggle across miles of strongly held desert positions was expected to continue for a time before sufficient ground was cleared for an allied tank blow at the armored backbone of Rommel's army.

The German news agency DPA reported last night that British tanks already were attacking in waves on the northern flank of the axis line, where, the agency said, the largest part of allied tank forces were concentrated.

(These attacks failed to achieve any noteworthy success, DPA said.)

Allied aircraft, including American bombers and fighters, were constantly scouring the battle area and the desert reaches behind it and the latest dispatches from the front told of a bitter air battle between allied planes and a group of axis dive bombers escorted by fighters.

Maj. Gen. Lewis H. Brereton disclosed that United States air forces were using American bombs for the first time to smash at axis concentrations behind the lines.

"The thing that has impressed me most about our men is their guts and tireless energy," General Brereton said last night at a press conference. "The same qualities are possessed by the RAF, but the German pilots' ability in this theater is not as good as a year ago, possibly due to losses and the fact that the new men haven't got the stuff the others had."

PAY RAISES OUT FOR DURATION

Freeze Goes on at Order of Byrnes, President Approves.

By The Associated Press
WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—That pay raises for the duration.

For the captains of industry, who call it remuneration, as well as the lowest wage earner, who calls it a raise, it is at the weekly installment, the old pay check is going to look the same every day, with some few exceptions here and there.

Regulation issued yesterday by Economic Director James F. Byrnes and approved by President Roosevelt generally limits public and private salaries, except those fixed by statute, to $75,000 a year and freezes all salaries and wages up to that amount.

The purpose was to discourage wartime inflation and at the same time increase federal tax revenue by causing corporations to retain amounts formerly paid out in high salaries. The corporations thus would be required to pay taxes levied at a higher rate than on individual earned income.

Decreases Not Affected
While there was no regulation preventing a salary decrease, any increase with certain exceptions must have approval of the war labor board or treasury.

The President, whose $75,000 salary is the only statutory federal increase exceeding $25,000, has asked the treasury, Byrnes said, that his pay be limited within the regulations.

Although for tax deductions and other allowances, treasury officials estimated that a person would have to make more than $67,000 a year to be affected by the $25,000 limitation.

Increases may be granted automatically in these classifications in cases of individual promotions or reclassifications; individual merit increases within established salary rate ranges; operation of an established system of salary increases based on service; increased productivity under an incentive plan; and in the operation of a trainee system.

The regulations covering salaries up to $5,000 do not apply to employees of eight persons or less. Similarly, the $25,000 limitation does not limit fees of doctors and lawyers unless they are retained by a corporation on a regular salary basis.

Leaving no doubt that the regulation was severe, Byrnes classified company executives as employees, although a person owning a business outright would be termed an employer and not subject to the salary limitation.

Salary Defined
In addition, the definition of a salary was so all-inclusive that small towns were left for unregulated income except possibly incidents. The definition:

"The term salary or salary payments means all forms of direct or indirect compensation which is computed on a weekly, monthly, annual or other comparable basis—except a wage basis—for personal services of an employee irrespective of when rendered. It includes bonuses, additional compensation, gifts, loans, commissions, fees and any other remuneration in any form or medium whatsoever."

Byrnes excluded insurance and pension benefits "in a reasonable amount" from the definition of salary.

In regard to decreases, salaries under $5,000 may not be lowered below the highest rate paid between Jan. 1, 1942, and Sept. 15, 1942. Decrease in salaries over $5,000 will be permitted, providing the resulting amount is not less than that figure.

Although speculation immediately centered around the limitation order's effects on the fabulous salaries received by multimillionaires and executives, another interesting case was that of President Roosevelt's salary.

Salary Boosts Forbidden
For administrative purposes, Byrnes said the $25,000 salary limitation would not be put into effect before Jan. 1, but he warned that in the meantime any increases in the president's salary without the treasury's approval.

Both the WLB and the internal revenue commissioner were empowered to issue further regulations implementing their new authority.

Despite the broad definition of salaries, Byrnes apparently recognized that some forms of remuneration might not be covered. He pointed out that he had no control over this other income, which could only be regulated through taxation provided by congress.

employ give an extra day's work next Saturday and Sunday, for which the company will pay double salary and the total to go to the United War Chest and the Red Cross.

"The important point in our plan is that we get an extra day of war production next Saturday and Sunday," he said. "And from that one extra day there will be two complete machines and 80,000 pounds of gun mount castings. So we have done more than get money for the war chest."

Explains Plan
He said the company's record was based on a good plan, willing workers and active union executives.

"We made this solicitation for the war chest and while we were asking, we also took pledges for the Red Cross. So we have finished our work for these two big drives."

Mr. Wiant called on union representatives to report for the two companies. Their reports on war chest contributions were as follows: Ellis Oiler, chairman of Local 1947, United Steelworkers of America, CIO, Alloy Cast Steel Co., 37 per cent of employees pledged $1,620; Duhon, chairman of Local 128, International Association of Machinists, AFL, General Excavator Co., 35 per cent pledged $1,217; George Rosebrough, chairman of Local 386, International Union, AFL, Osgood Iron Foundry, 100 per cent pledged $85.27; William O. Dudley, chairman of Local 386, I.M.F.W.U., Commercial Steel Casting Co., 55 per cent pledged $3,575.42; Charles O'Dowd, chairman of Roosevelt Lodge No. 1281, Osgood main plant, 100 per cent, $3,732.

In addition, Mr. Wiant reported, the office staff, from custodians through to the president, had given 100 per cent, their contributions totaling $2,231.43.

Charles D. Harmon of the Industrial Division, reported the following incomplete reports from other industries:

Marion Steam Shovel Co., $10,500; American Malleable Casting Co., $1,254.75; Pollock Steel Co., $250; Huber Mfg. Co., $1,250; Fairfield Engineering Co., $700.

Small Factories' Report
C. A. McGraw, reporting for Industrial A, said that 20 per cent of the factories had reported $145,700.

The Public Service Power Co. in the public service division has gone over 100 per cent of quota, raising $53.01 more than the quota of $5,000. J. G. Lytle, assistant secretary, reported. He said the employees gave an average of 10 hours a day to the drive and that in addition the local union and the Brotherhood of Electrical Workers had given $25.

Harold J. Grigsby, head of the public service division reported $1,342 from the Erie railroad and announced that the sum was about one-third of quota and that to date 20 per cent of the employees have been selected.

Other division reports were as follows: Russell H. Sechrist for chain stores, 345 pledges, $3,458.95; retail, J. D. Torrance, 245 pledges, $3,873.30; financial, E. Paul Bachman, $3,321.50, which represents 100 per cent of all financial institutions, except one small organization; public employees, Principal O. H. P. Snyder for public schools, $1,534.95 and C. I. Smithson for post office and county agricultural office employees, 36 pledges, $263; general, Mrs. A. Meile Hamilton, $8,852.30. The general division reports were made by Mrs. Robert LaMarche, for Mrs. Eugene Willey, Mrs. Ellis Houghton and Mrs. J. H. Harmon.

County Plan
Fred Hoch, chairman of the county division, reported that 93 "neighborhood" groups are working in the county and that organizations have been set up in the villages. He said he expected to have a report by the last of the week.

Supt. E. E. Holt head of the public employees' division, reported that Mrs. Mary J. Taylor, superintendent of Marion City hospital, reported nearly 100 per cent of quota reached and solicitations not yet completed. He said city employees will follow the practice of contributing one hour's pay a month for 10 months to the war chest and that city firemen have voted 100 per cent cooperation.

giving an hour a month to the drive. He said the report from county employees was expected Thursday night.

Pep talks were given by Chester C. Roberts of the Marion-Reserve Power Co., E. J. Schoenlaub, Herbert Wade, co-chairman of the drive, and Mr. Holt.

Mr. Roberts spoke in behalf of the Marion agencies in the war chest, pointing to their vital place in the community life and service and declared: "This year in the drive we have two aims. Our own community chest and our war contributions."

Predicts Success
Mr. Wade, after stating that he believed this is the first year that labor as an organized group has come into the fund drive, said the unions don't want controlling interest in anything, only a fair representation. He told of the union pre-Pearl Harbor relief work abroad and spoke of the united war chest work of the CIO and AFL.

Mr. Schoenlaub was impressed with the united effort of the entire community, terming it "the thing we have been working for years."

"When we can get selfish ideas out and work for one cause we can win," he said. "It is satisfying to have labor in the fight with us." He spoke of Marion's over-the-top record in war bond buying and said: "I think all of us are trying to win the war one way or another."

Mr. Oliphant in his brief talk said: "The war chest is a bit of insurance to protect those war bonds. If the morale of China, Russia and Britain should break down, God help us, and those bonds won't be worth much. If we can keep up the home front morale by things like we are doing tonight, we are placing insurance against our war bonds to protect them for a future payoff."

Mr. Holt told a story illustrative of the effectiveness of cooperation. W. E. Orcutt led group singing and Miss Virginia Grover, provided a program of piano selections. The invocation was given by Rev. J. A. Camber of Forest Lawn Presbyterian church.

Archbishop Sees Need of Strong U. S. - Anglo Ties

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
LONDON, Oct. 28.—The archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. William Temple, tells me he believes Anglo-American friendship is one of the first needs in rebuilding the post-war world and he is concerned over a report he has received that the United States may draw away from this country because of Britain's trend to the "left."

When the archbishop speaks of the "left" he is not using the expression in the political sense but in its broad, colloquial meaning. He has in mind England's social upheaval which is heading toward equal opportunity for all with special privileges for none.

His grave asked if there was danger of amity and cooperation between the two countries being harmed by this tendency.

I assured him that my observation led me to believe that the United States was turning toward us in the times and that we should keep step with England in every humanitarian development.

The archbishop has a very special interest in this "leftism" movement in Britain because he himself is a vital part of it. In Dr. Temple we have a curious break in generations of conservatism which have occupied the primacy of throne.

What I really called on the archbishop for was to get his views on the delectable subject of hanging Hitler and whether the allies were fighting this war for Christianity—a matter of some debate in England.

Dr. Temple remarked that "Nazism is opposed to Christianity. It is an anti-Christian thing we are fighting," he said. "Nazism puts no limits to the state; that is to say, it makes it absolute. Christianity must resist that and insist that the state owes allegiance to God."

"Our civilization has many Christian features. The beliefs of civilized peoples are akin to Christianity though the ideas may have come from other religions. So we are fighting against an anti-Christian thing and for something which is in harmony with Christianity."

"However, we are not fighting for the Christian faith itself. Moslems, Hindus, Jews and followers of other religions are battling together the Christians for division."

"To say, for instance, that we are fighting for the doctrine of the incarnation and the atonement would be nonsense."

Then arose the question of whether the Nazi alt-highest must be removed from the picture in one way or another as soon as Germany has surrendered.

"I think so," said the archbishop. "But it may be difficult to hold trials which will give impartial justice."

"There is a danger of horrible massacres... that is, this may happen unless the allies can act in time to prevent it. Christian influence must be thrown on the side of justice."

Manpower Board Acts To Ease Farm Labor
WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—The war manpower commission came up today with an answer to World War number one's query of how to keep 'em down on the farm.

Seeking to ease the manpower shortage in farm production vital to the war effort, the WMC issued a directive last night calling for wage stabilization and draft deferment for dairy, livestock and poultry farmers.

In addition, it instructed government contractors to refrain from hiring workers in these types of farm production and urged other employers to do likewise.

Local draft boards were requested to grant occupational deferment to necessary men on essential farms, as long as they performed their duties and the army and navy were asked not to recruit such workers or accept them for voluntary enlistment.

Army Truck Figures in Traffic Mishap
One of the large army trucks, similar to those which have passed through Marion frequently, was involved in an accident at East Center and Barnhart streets at 4:08 p. m. yesterday. The truck, driven by Robert James Dille, 27, of Springfield, collided with an auto driven by Bert F. Clark, 45, of Cleveland. Following an investigation by city police a charge of reckless operation was filed against Clark by city police. He was to appear today in municipal court.

Things Happened Swiftly for Ohio Seaman Aboard Lost Carrier Wasp

By The Associated Press
PAINESVILLE, O., Oct. 28.—Within a few short hours, youthful William S. Jones saw his plane destroyed aboard the aircraft carrier Wasp, rescued the plane's captain, swam through shark-infested waters and underwent an appendectomy.

The 19-year-old aviation machinist mate, third class, who sometimes doubled as a rear-seat gunner when volunteers were needed, told this tale of pain and destruction of his seafaring Perry home today.

Just 20 minutes before the attack on the Wasp, he had landed on the carrier.

"The first torpedo struck when I was about 50 feet from the plane on the hangar deck," he related. "The plane was blown to hell but I didn't get a scratch."

Ordered to abandon ship, he slid down a rope and into the water. "Fortunately most of the boys were off the ship when a big load of bombs when the Wasp was carrying it; so created quite a noise," he continued.

"After I got into the water I discovered my plane captain, who had been terribly burned, was being beaten against the side of the ship by waves. I helped him onto a life raft."

"Then for four hours I swam through shark-infested waters, keeping near the raft. All this time my captain never wavered or cried out, despite almost unbearable pain. This was the type of men the Wasp carried."

Jones also told how the crew tried valiantly to save the carrier from fire and exploding shells from the Wasp's own ammunition racks.

"The boys took the situation just as calmly as if they were in a football game at home, I guess," he added.

Picked up from the sea by a destroyer, Jones was transferred to a second ship on which he underwent an appendectomy made necessary, he said, by depth charges having been dropped in the water around him.

Eager to become a pilot, the tall machinist's mate recently took a naval aviation examination.

SUB THAT SANK WASP DESTROYED, SEAMAN SAYS
Florida Youth Reports Destroyer Blasted Craft.

By The Associated Press
TAMPA, Fla., Oct. 28.—The Japanese submarine which torpedoed the U. S. aircraft carrier Wasp was in turn sent to the bottom by an American destroyer, one of the carrier's survivors declared here.

Jack H. Westbrooke, 18, quartermaster (3rd class) aboard the Wasp, related:

"I was at my battle station in the secondary control tower. I heard the first two torpedo explosions, but before the third one hit I saw the wake heading for the ship. I saw my knees go, the shock wouldn't hurt my legs."

"A moment after the explosion, I saw the sub surface as a destroyer came up."

"The destroyer dropped a depth charge and I saw the sub break in two, then the bow went up and sank. A fellow standing by me said: 'That's one in fish that won't sink another American ship.'"

It has been suggested that a class at the hours mentioned might be of interest to a large group of business and professional women who have no other time to attend the first aid classes now under instruction.

Women interested in the course have been asked to register at the Red Cross office on the second floor at the Y. M. C. A. on South State street.

MARION TEAMS READY FOR THURSDAY AND FRIDAY GAMES

Hardingmen Tackle Bucyrus in N.C.O. Feature; Irish Face Lima St. Rose in Final Home Game.

Returning to the N.C.O. front, Marion Harding's football Presidents prepare to tangle a powerless Bucyrus Redmen eleven Thursday night at 8 on the Lane Street athletic field in Bucyrus.

In Bucyrus Coach Nick Wasylik announced that for the fifth straight week his team will be riddled by injuries. Seriously ill with an ailment that has not been diagnosed, Charles Shuck, star Bucyrus fullback, will be out of the Marion game and possibly will not get back in uniform this year. Bob Lavin, another outstanding backfield performer, is not expected to see action any more this season. Coach Wasylik said three others who had seen considerable service as substitutes this year would also be on the sidelines Thursday.

Hard Luck Team
Bucyrus has been the hard luck team of the N. C. O. this year, dropping several close ones as a result of continued injuries. "I never have had the 11 men I wanted in a game at any time," Coach Wasylik moaned.

N.C.O. CENSUS FIGURES

The following figures are the 1940 census estimates of the six towns comprising the North Central Ohio league:

In the starting Bucyrus line-up will be two seniors, eight juniors and one sophomore. Average weight of the team is 150 pounds with the line weighing 155 and the backs averaging about 145.

Asked what kind of an attack he planned in his attack the Marion, Coach Wasylik hinted the Bucyrusians would use the plenty of spread plays and all possible trickery. "We confuse the enemy," he explained.

Bucyrus opened its season by losing Tiffin Columbus 0-0, followed by losses to Upper Sandusky by 0-0, Ashland by 20-0, Shelby by 20-13 and Gallion by 7-0. Last week the Redmen scored late in the game to gain a 6-6 tie with Crestline.

Tough Between 36

In each of the first six games Bucyrus averaged 10 first downs. Coach Wasylik said his charges had been exceptionally tough in every game between the 30-yard markers, but weak near the goal lines.

On the Local Front

Time Ripe for Harding Exit from N. C. O. Conference.

By LOREN W. TIBBALS
Marion Star Sports Editor

A lot has been said in recent weeks about the possible elimination of Marion Harding from the North Central Ohio conference. Until last Saturday this feeling has been sounded in one or two of the other five league towns only. However, after the Harding collapse by 20-0 to a veteran Sandusky team last Friday night, many Harding backers believe it is about time for the locals to park up and seek new fields to conquer.

While Harding was definitely outclassed by Sandusky, the defeat awakened many a fan to the fact Harding has been playing out of its class in meeting other N.C.O. clubs.

Up to now the brand of ball played in the N.C.O. has been sufficiently tough enough for the Harding, and at most times too tough. Remember those lean years from 1928 through 1932?

However, and most fans will agree, Harding teams year by year are getting tougher. A few fans rank last year's unbeaten and undefeated team as the greatest in the school's history, but only by breaks did the 1941 team produce a 12-0 win while the current Harding nation and smashed across two touchdowns before the Ashlands drew blood. Of course, the final Harding margin was more or less luck this year.

Five years ago when Harding football was at its lowest ebb no thought was given to the possibility of the Presidents leaving the league. For 10 years previous to 1938 Harding's principal position in the grid league was to safeguard the loop's cellar. Despite desperate attempts by local players, fans and alumni gridders, Harding annually was destined to remain far under the pack in final league standings.

Harding teams have improved to the point where today they rank head and shoulders above other league teams and, while the Harding are not immune to ups and downs, the Presidents loom as 1942 league champs. Present sophomores, juniors, as well as junior high school gridders eligible for Harding teams in another year or two, point to more championships, if the Harding remain in the N.C.O.

But what is the point of remaining in the league as long as championships are more or less a matter of winning one game above all others each year? Their record in the last four years certainly has earned the Harding a chance to take a crack at faster competition.

Undoubtedly a number of devotees would be chafing against them, but eventually the change would pay dividends. It would be far better to lose a few games each year than to continue winning in regular order and no learning good football.

MARION TIGERS TO PLAY GALION TEAM

S. O. P. Gridders Face Jaycees Tonight at 8:30.

The Marion Tigers, semi-professional football team, will entertain the Galion Jaycees in a return game scheduled for 8:30 tonight at Harding stadium.

Lovers by a score of 14-0 in the first engagement three weeks ago, the Tigers are in a better shape to tackle the strong Jaycees eleven. They had practiced with complete uniforms only three times previous to the first game and had never played a game together. Since then the war plant gridders have battled a strong Columbus Denton Service team to a scoreless deadlock.

Tonight's game will match two teams composed of stars who battled for high school honors a few years ago in the North Central Ohio conference. For the most part both teams include a number of former Marion Harding and Galion High stars.

OHIO STATE FRESHMEN FOOTBALL SQUAD IS BEST IN RECENT YEARS

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 23 — Ohio's 500-odd high school football teams—the toughest scholastic loop in the country and long known as the "happy hunting grounds" of the nation's college coaches—last night are steering their hot-shot athletes toward Ohio State university.

And a quick look at the present Ohio State freshman squad would indicate the Bucks didn't miss many of the outstanding stars from the 1941 scholastic field.

Heading the list of newcomers who will be eligible next fall unless the 12-year draft law or scholastic hurdles eliminate them is Tom Phillips, the one-man team from Berea. The 125-pound star found time last year to toss 21 touchdowns pass in eight games, to score seven touchdowns, call the signals and boot 14 extra points from placement. The triple-threat was voted the state's No. 1 scholastic player, and grabbed the quarterback spot on the Associated Press all-Ohio, recognized as official by the state high school coaching association. Also on the freshman squad are Russell Wolfe, all-state fullback from Upper Sandusky; Louis Groza, the huge kick-backing all-Ohio tackle from Marquette; and Wayne Caldwell, the 1940 all-state center from Springfield. From the second all-Ohio of last year are Larry Adams, center from Cleveland; Pat Brees, Hamilton's mighty guard; Joe Demando, starting end from Massillon, and Bill Doolittle, Mansfield quarterback.

From the honorable mention list of the 1941 Associated Press all-Ohio, the Bucks obtained Mike Perrotti, Cleveland tackle; Charles Stange, Mentor end; Dominick Stumco, Leetonia fullback; and Joe Wheeler, fullback from Willard.

Brown, who recalls too vividly the loss of Huron Stadium, mighty end from Massillon, through scholastic difficulties, isn't counting on the freshmen until next fall when all the grades are in and the draft status settled. Gilman is the only high school player in history to make the all-Ohio three straight years, and he "flunked out" before he could get into a varsity uniform.

The freshman squad, rated the classiest in Ohio history—and the smallest with only 43 members after several slashes—has three members in addition to those mentioned above:

Ends: Stanley Dixon, Wyoming; Lou Holzapfel, Greenville; Jim Palmer, South Vienna; Henry O. Parnam, Dayton; Chuck Stemmmer, Upper Sandusky.

Tackles: Charles Albright, Van Wert; Frank Garfield, Canton; Sam Gordon, Columbus; Joe Kirkland, Fort Lauderdale, Fla.; Donald Rose, Cambridge; Kenneth Ryan, Cleveland.

Guards: Warren Amling, Panama; Bob Brinkman, Huntington, W. Va.; Eddy Burrus, Toledo; Frank Clawson, Hamilton; Denver Duffey, Toledo; George Keeler, Springfield; Edward Montanus, Springfield.

Center: Bob Drew, Cambridge; Quarterbacks: Jim Campbell, Huron; Jack Chabek, Cleveland; William Craig, Columbus; Dave Templeton, Mansfield.

Halfbacks: Dick Havens and Gordon Hobson, Columbus; Talmadge Jackson, Thomas Jefferson; and Leonard Puhalla, Youngstown; Ernest Savory, Lynn, Mass. Fullbacks: Richard Dierker, Columbus; Walter Weimer, Mansfield.

Iodine and Goiter

EVERYONE has heard of goiter countries. Once about the only one generally known was Switzerland. It was thought that goiter was prevalent there because of something in the drinking water that came out of the glaciers and snow capped mountains. Modern medical research shows that the cause was not something that was in the drinking water. The something that wasn't there was iodine.

We in North America were very complacent about Switzerland until it was noticed we had quite a large goiter region of our own. It extended from the Great Lakes country west along the northern border of the United States and the southern border of Canada. Like Switzerland, the surface soil of this region was laid down by the old glacier ice-cap.

The Great Lakes themselves are merely glacial lakes. The glacial soil spread over and covered all the soil laid down originally as ocean bottom. Ocean bottom land is rich in iodine from the dead kelp and algae that absorbed so much iodine from the ocean water when they were alive.

This top glacial soil gives no iodine to the vegetables that grow in it, to milk, to the sources of drinking water.

The relation of iodine to goiter is very close. The body needs a small but constant amount of iodine for its functions. All of this iodine goes first to the thyroid gland, and enters into its secretion in a definite amount. If iodine is diminished in drinking water and food, the gland increases the number of its cells in order to extract as much as possible from the blood as it flows past. More cells means enlarged thyroid, which is what goiter is.

Well, it would seem normal and natural that this could be helped by adding iodine to the food in goiter regions. The procedure was tried and it worked. Adding just a little iodized salt to the food of school children cut down the goiter incidence to almost zero.

Twenty years ago, this campaign was started. Then people began to forget. A goiterless generation grew up. Authorities became lax. All of a sudden a year or two ago, public health officials woke to find that goiter was on the increase again; the rate rose in Michigan from 3.2 in 1937 to 4.6 in 1939 per 100,000 population.

So the iodized salt campaign is on again. It only takes a little. The salt used is sodium iodide, which can hardly be distinguished from table salt. Three grains a day for 10 consecutive days in the spring and fall are enough. Do not try to take any more.

The states where this should be done are Michigan, northern Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, the Dakotas, Montana, Washington (possibly Wyoming, Idaho, Nevada and California), and Quebec, Ontario, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia.

Pitfalls of Love

By ADELE GARRISON

"DR. TWITCHELL wasn't in the room when Milner switched the trays," Adams said indignantly. "Milner came back here as soon as he had fixed Redfield up in Room 1522."

"Right after you left, leaving the young folks in this suite," Adams went on. "Milner took outside, told me to go into a vacant suite and tell the photographer, Miss Black, who is one of his flingers, to call him as soon as any call came from this suite, but to be careful, because he wasn't alone. He told her he'd then use a code to give her instructions."

"In a few minutes the call came, and after listening he said, 'Thank you, then, wait a minute,' and turned to us."

"I think some coffee is indicated," he told Dr. Twitchell, then turned back to the telephone, saying, "Please arrange to have a tray with coffee and biscuits for three sent up!" Then he added slowly: "My usual style, remember."

"That last was a code, I take it," my father said, as Adams paused.

"Yes, it was," Adams replied. "Have the trays exactly the same, and bring them first to me" was the meaning.

"When the water knocked Dr. Twitchell was in the bedroom with Redfield. Milner told the waiter to bring in our tray and set it on the table, and while the waiter was doing it, Milner stepped out into the hall, as if to look over the other and see that it was all right. He's always looking after details, you know."

"Yes, yes, I know," my father said impatiently. "Did you see him put something into the pot of coffee intended for the Veritizers?"

"Oh, no," Adams replied. "He's too foxey for that. His back was toward me and I couldn't see a thing. But you can bet that's when he put in the dope."

"Then we three had our coffee, and then Milner got men to come with a stretcher, and we got Redfield settled in 1522."

"Milner had asked Dr. Twitchell to stay until he got back, and the doc said he would. As soon as Milner and I got back here, he sent me on an errand to the next floor, but I scuttled up to the apartment above this, which you took, took the rope kept there and shinned down to the balcony outside these rooms."

My father shot a wary glance at me, so far kept in ignorance of this precaution, but I kept as strict a poker face as I could as Adams went on.

"Lucky for me," Adams said, "the curtain was drawn just enough so I could see inside. I saw Mr. Veritex operating on the couch, and thought his wife probably was in the other room on the bed. I wasn't alarmed, because Milner never would risk doing anybody more than to put them to sleep."

"Then I saw Milner come tip-toeing into the room. He leaned over Mr. Veritex, nodded to himself, then went out."

"In another minute he came back, carrying the tray that had been in our room, only minus one cup, that put the Veritex tray on a chair and his own on the table, arranged it to look exactly like the one he was taking out, then carried away the Veritex tray."

"He left nothing to chance, that baby," Dicky commented.

"No, he didn't," Adams said. "I climbed back up the rope to the suite above this, hurried out and did the errand Milner had asked, then came down to the next apartment. The tray was on the floor outside the door, but there was nothing in either the coffee pot or the cups. They'd been washed out."

"I should think he would have been afraid to do that," my father commented, "unless the waiter was an especially confidential accomplice."

The Stars Say—

For Thursday, Oct. 29

AN INTERESTING and progressive day is foreseen from the predominant lunar and mutual configurations. The new, unusual or out-of-the-beaten-track ideas and objectives are particularly favored and should receive endorsement from those in power. There is a hint of treachery, suspicion or other undercover menace to be alert to guard against. Artistic and cultural affiliations also flourish.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a particularly happy and pleasurable year in their social, domestic and romantic associations, with many functions and diversions in this respect. Plans and ambitions in some form of exceptional enterprise or in fresh fields of endeavor should progress most favorably.

A child born on this day should have exceptional creative abilities, practical as well as idealistic, which should assure it high place and popularity.
